$150,000,000 HONEYMOONERS WILL GO ABROAD

Mr. and Mrs. Guy L. Waggoner, of Texas Plan Extended Tour.

By International News Service. NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Guy Leslie Waggoner, of Fort Worth, Tex., representing aggregate wealth of $150,000,000, who were married in New York Labor Day, were preparing today for an extended honeymoon in Europe. They expect to sail September 16 for a six months' tour in England, France, Italy and Germany. The ceremony took place at the rectory of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church. Mrs. Burnett, the bride's mother, was the only attendant. The Rev. George C. Moore performed the ceremony. Mrs. Waggoner will be twenty years old in October; her husband is thirty-eight.

Mr. and Mrs. Waggoner are stopping at the Biltmore until their departure for Europe. Years ago Guy Waggoner was a real cowboy on his father's vast ranches in western Texas. About the same time Anne Burnett, his future and fourth bride, was brought to live in the millionaire rancher's colony in Fort Worth, by her mother. S. B. Burnett, Anne's grandfather, became one of the richest cattle men in the West. Later oil was discovered on his estates and his fortune jumped to more than $15,000,000. Last June the grandfather died. Mrs. Waggoner will get the entire fortune when she is twenty-one. By the will she is allowed $15,000 a year until she produces a male heir. Waggoner obtained his last divorce just before Captain Burnett died. His wealth is so great that when he had a dispute with the National Oil Company, which had been leasing his land, he produced his own oil, built refineries, and is operating his own tank car lines.

U. S. LOOKING FOR APOLOGY IN CONSUL DISPUTE

State Department Feels England Wrong in Attitude on Newcastle Officials.

By Universal Service. The controversy between this Government and Great Britain over the expulsion of American Consul Slater and Vice Consul Brooks from Newcastle has reached the stage where action must be taken. It was declared by officials today.

It is indicated that the question will be taken up with Sir Auckland Geddes, the British ambassador, on his return to Washington this week. The official report on the case from the American embassy in London has not reached the State Department as yet, but it is expected any day. The whole affair was threatened out pretty fully in the preliminary report, on which the White House and the State Department felt fully justified in holding the American officials guilty.

The attitude of officials now that they should act rather than make statements for publication is based on the fact that there is involved something more than a mere question of whether or not the consul exceeded the privilege of their office. The highest authorities of the United States Government have stated emphatically that Slater and Brooks did not abuse their privileges by endeavoring to advance the interests of the American merchant marine. Therefore, there can be no middle ground.

If Great Britain apologizes, as the circumstances seem to warrant, she will make a confession of the gravest kind of diplomatic error. If this Government wavers in its defense of its representatives abroad, it will not be able to reconcile its new position with the positive expressions at the White House and State Department a few days ago.
